

Privacy Policy of DivorceOnline.co.za

Introduction DivorceOnline.co.za ("DivorceOnline," "we," "us," "our") respects the private nature of the information you share with us. This Privacy Policy ("Policy") details our approach to safeguarding and utilizing your Personal Information. By providing your Personal Information to us, you:

1. Agree to this Policy and consent to us processing your information as described herein.
2. Authorize DivorceOnline, our service providers, and third parties to process your Personal Information for the purposes outlined in this Policy.

We are committed to handling your Personal Information solely for the purposes specified in this Policy, ensuring its protection against unauthorized access or misuse. This Policy may be revised periodically, with the latest version available upon request. It applies to all our individual clients.

Collection of Personal Information We collect your Personal Information from various sources, including directly from you, during our interactions, and through our services. Your information may become public, be shared during website visits, social media interactions, service registrations, third-party content engagements, or as required by law. We might also generate or receive your information from third parties (e.g., law enforcement).

Categories of Personal Information We process various categories of your information, including:

- Personal details like name and photograph.
- Demographic information including gender, date of birth, nationality, and language preferences.
- Identifier information such as ID numbers, utility details, bank statements, and lease agreements.
- Contact, instruction, and payment details, including your address, phone number, email, and financial data.
- Website visit data like device type, IP address, browser details, and technical communications information.
- Content and advertising data, tracking your interactions with our online presence.

Sensitive Personal Information We handle your sensitive data responsibly, complying with legal standards and ensuring legitimate processing for business operations.

Purposes of Processing We process your information for various purposes including business operations, legal compliance, fraud prevention, service provider interactions, relationship management, marketing, and statistical analysis.

Disclosure to Third Parties Your information may be shared with service providers and third parties as part of our business operations, in adherence to legal and professional standards.

International Transfers We may transfer your data internationally, ensuring adequate protection and legal compliance in line with South African laws.

Data Security We implement robust security measures to protect your information from unauthorized access or breaches, notifying you and regulatory authorities of any security incidents.

Data Accuracy and Minimisation We ensure the accuracy and relevance of the information we process, adhering to principles of data minimisation and retention as required by law.

Your Legal Rights You have rights to access, rectify, delete, or restrict the use of your Personal Information, with options to object to processing, request data transfer, or withdraw consent.

Cookies and Direct Marketing We use cookies and similar technologies for website functionality and marketing purposes, with options for you to opt-out of direct marketing communications.

Contact Information For any privacy-related inquiries, please contact our Data Protection Officer at info@Divorceonline.co.za.